CANADA'S MARKET WILL BE OPENED TO 12 NATIONS BY

RATIFICATION OF AGREEMENT

E. Michener

At Auditorium Last Night -- George B. Campbell, Conservative Candidate for the Strathcona Constituency, Introduced Here.

Natural Resources

From the two political gatherings held in town and the great enthusiasm produced from both meetings, it would be very difficult to form an opinion as to what result the polls will show on the evening of Sept. 21st. Both candidates were received with wide open arms. Either the local electors are most sympathetic in their nature towards both politicians or have turned to some degree with the latter meeting. Both audiences greeted the candidates with liberal if not profuse applause.

The meeting last night brought forth many points that had not been advanced until that time, the chief one of which was that brought out by Mr. Michener, that when Canada's market was opened to the United States it would also be opened to twelve other nations.

G. L. Hudson, president of the local conservative association, presided at the meeting and in brief addresses introduced the speakers, the first being George B. Campbell, Conservative candidate for the Strathcona constituency. Mr. Campbell throughout his speech showed great knowledge of facts and quick instances of illustration, where, if the liberal party was returned to power, Canada as a nation with reciprocity would suffer. In his review of reciprocity from its recent origin, he stated that it had met with many protests and even from the time that it had been placed on the tables of the Dominion House, Laurier had announced that he would cause a redistribution of the parliamentary seats, but proceeded at once to rush reciprocity through. Horden offered opposition and parliament was dissolved, because he wished to see reciprocity decided before a redistribution.

Since 1894, reciprocity was traced in his relation to the United States. It was, however, soon cancelled because the Americans were beginning to prosper. During the latter stages of his life, the American war had broken out and the Canadians received a good figure for their products. Sir John A. McDonald had said that the only way to develop a country was by developing a home market. Reciprocity did not promote this. The conservative party believed in the great national policy and free trade with the United States in certain articles. Why should the fiscal policy be changed at this late date and the system of the whole British Empire broken? Three transcontinental railways had been constructed. They were built for a purpose and to draw the trade of the country east and west. Why should our trade be taken south through the United States? The Hudson Bay railway was planned. It must have been considered at some importance, but the liberals sought to divert the trade to the south. Would the north never be used as a highway to the greater markets of the world?

Mr. Borden had promised, if he returned to power, the early construction of this road. A commission to investigate the natural resources of the great American republic had been appointed when Taft was elected. He made a review of the tariff, downwards. The figures were authentic and went to show that Canadian products sold 15 per cent higher than American products. After the tariff had been introduced into the American parliament, the traders or farmers had gone to Taft with complaints. He answered them simply and they went away rejoicing. "Why,

Word Received From W.P. Hinton Plot of Ground at Local Station will be Started this Fall--Advice

Word has recently been received by H. C. King, secretary of the Board of Trade, from W. P. Hinton of the Grand Trunk Pacific, and who has always taken a deep interest in the welfare of Wainwright, that the railway company will start this fall on the grading and preliminary work on the plot of ground at the local station, which was recently surveyed by Professor Brodick. "The planting," says he in his letter, "will be done next spring." It is also the intention of the G. T. P. to construct a sidewalk on each side of Main St. from the station to First Avenue. In order to carry out the general effect, Mr. Hinton proposes that the town make a boulevard and plant trees for at least one block each side of Main St. The suggestion of Mr. Hinton is a good one and it is to be hoped that it may be acted upon so that both improvements may be finished about the same time. Another wise suggestion by Mr. Hinton is that the business men should have their places of business painted and made attractive looking.

men, reciprocity cannot hurt you. Your prices are lower than the Americans. The prevailing prices of wheat, cattle, horses, hogs and other live stock were also dealt with by Mr. Campbell. The egg industry was also taken up and the statement made that Swift & Co. in the event of reciprocity passing, would make a rebate of three cent per dozen. "Why," said Mr. Campbell, "we have the best home market of any country in the world, that exports farm products. Mr. Campbell's speech was a most interesting one and was received with frequent bursts of applause."

Mr. E. Michener, leader of the opposition in the local house, advanced the issues of the campaign, the conservative platform and the provincial control of natural resources. The latter had been promised for Alberta by Premier Sifton, yet no announcement had been made to that effect from Sir Wilfred. Borden's platform contained a plank to that effect. Alberta wanted it and he would give it to the three prairie provinces. The farmers' delegation to Ottawa last fall had asked for action on the chilled meat industry, terminal elevators, the immediate construction of the Hudson Bay railway and certain reductions on imports coming from the United States, chief of which, was freer trade in farming implements. How many of these would the farmers receive by reciprocity? What had Laurier promised? There was no reason for saying that the farmers would receive their requests with the ratification of reciprocity. If reciprocity passed, what would it involve? It would at the same time open up the Canadian market to twelve other nations and those included in the "Twelve Favored Nations" treaty. The country would be flooded with foreign imports and the home production would be ruined. Yes, Mr. Michener stated that it was a one sided policy of the British Empire. Canada sold to the American half as much as she purchased. The advantages must then be one sided. "If a man entered a partnership business with another," said he, "and put ten times as much in the business, it would stand to reason that

Politicians Everywhere

Political speeches are not confined to the platform by any means as has been proven during the past week, when arguments have been advanced by certain parties in and about the Wainwright Hotel. Reciprocity has formed the chief subject for discussion, although American politics have figured very prominently also. One gentleman, who has been stopping at the hotel, and who is particularly well-informed on the issue, has enlightened a great many electors on the prominent election question, with the effect that they now see, believe and understand.

Invested Heavily and will Locate

Mr. David McCullough of Winnipeg, who has been traveling over the West for some time past and who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dawson for the past two weeks, left for Edmonton on Thursday last. From there he left for Vancouver and points south to enjoy a holiday.

While here, Mr. McCullough purchased a half section of land north of town and will make arrangements during the near future for considerable breaking in preparation for the coming spring. By April, it is his intention to have the whole three hundred and twenty acres broken and placed under crop.

Mr. McCullough is a man of considerable means and will go into extensive grain growing enterprises, purchasing a gasoline outfit with all the necessary implements. He was greatly impressed with the town and district and formed his opinion after motoring over a large percentage of the territory, tributary to Wainwright.

While here, he was accompanied by his niece, Miss McCullough.

The Presbytery of Vermilion will meet in St. Andrew's Church, Wainwright, on Tuesday, Sept. 12th, at 4 P. M. In the evening, at 8 o'clock there will be a public meeting, to which all are invited when prominent members of the Presbytery will speak on Local Opinion.

WANTED—About six young pigs from two or three months old. Apply to John Manner.

The present week has been a particularly busy one in Wainwright. With the assurance of a good crop and the usual excitement at election times, the farmers of the community have paid frequent visits to their town. Business has been very brisk and the business men pronounce a steady increase. They also state that the fall will be a very busy one.

From being cut by a mower knife on Monday, David, the little son of Philip Springer, is now in a fair way to losing his foot. The little fellow was whipping up the horses and placed himself behind the animals and in front of the mower, being driven by Fritz Gohring. They started quickly and with such serious results that the foot was almost severed from the leg. Dr. Watson is doubtful as to whether the foot will be saved.

the wealthier parties would profit more." In 1909, Laurier had said that Canada was prosperous and that Laurier now seeks to change her condition. Weigh the question wisely and Mr. Campbell on September 21st, will be the member for Strathcona.

WAINWRIGHT DISTRICT MEETINGS

The Wainwright District of the Methodist Church met at Tofteld last week. There were present: Rev. T. Phillips, of Wainwright (chairman), Rev. S. Nicholson, Tofteld, Rev. R. H. Brett, Holden, Rev. J. E. Merriam, Viking, Rev. E. F. Kemp, Round Hill, Rev. J. E. Graham, Kinsella, Rev. W. Sykes, Jarow, Rev. F. E. Boothroyd, Irma, Mrs. Phillips, Mrs. Merriam and Mrs. Boothroyd accompanied their husbands.

On Wednesday night a most inspiring time was begun, continued all day Thursday, in consideration of several phases of work. Subjects discussed were as follows:—"The Missionary at the Front," "The Man at the base of Supplies," "The Minister as a Student," "The Conduct of the Service," "Messages that arouse and win," "Messages that edify and enlist."

"The Minister in Pastoral and Social Life." The District Missionary, Campbell, "Place of Sunday School in the Life of the Church," "The Citizen and Local Option." With so full a programme, the time was strictly allocated and wisely used, leaving opportunity for frequent prayer.

With the added presence on Friday of the Rev. T. C. Buchanan, Superintendent of Missions, the Meeting fell to the work of making financial arrangements for the year. Although as yet not due Mission is self-supporting, the estimates from the circuits provided for an aggregate increase of eighteen hundred dollars for Ministerial Support alone, so that, while not yet a strong District in comparison with older parts of the Conference, the Wainwright District bids fair to make good in the not distant future.

A hearty vote of thanks was accorded the Tofteld friends for their generous hospitality.

CAMPBELL GIVEN GOOD HEARING AT GILT EDGE

A very enthusiastic meeting of the electors of Gilt Edge greeted Mr. G. B. Campbell, the conservative candidate in the Strathcona constituency at the Gilt Edge School on Wednesday evening last. The schoolhouse was crowded to the doors. Mr. Campbell and his supporter, Major Jamieson, handled the issues of the campaign in a very able manner and created a favourable impression. Judging from the great enthusiasm displayed by those present and from the large number of electors who joined the association after the meeting, Mr. Campbell will receive a comfortable majority in the Gilt Edge district.

The meeting held on the following evening at the Edgerton school was a very successful one also, the same speakers occupied the platform and submitted a case that was a strong one. Mr. Campbell took up the principle issues of the campaign, not adhering to reciprocity entirely. The conservative platform was taken up in every detail and discussed. Major Jamieson emphasized the points submitted by Mr. Campbell, further speaking of the Hudson Bay railway, terminal elevators, the chilled meat industry and the excessive freight rates, prevailing throughout the West. He also touched on the civil service reform.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Mills and Mr. and Mrs. K. A. Snyder left on Sunday for Minneapolis, where they will attend the Minnesota State Fair. While absent, Mr. Snyder will also visit his old home.

100 Bushel to the Acre

In certain parts of the district, cutting has been finished, R. A. Bell, who finished cutting seventy-five acres on Friday last being the first. Mr. Bell, who is located on the "Battle-draw Farm" at Clark Manor, states that his wheat will easily average thirty-five bushels to the acre and his oats 100 bushels. None of his grain was touched by the frost, although one night the thermometer dropped three degrees below the freezing point. His oats, which yielded such an exceptionally high average, were raised from seed, procured from the government and known as "English Abundance."

Alberta will Get Great Publicity

Alberta is receiving a great deal of publicity these days and during the next few months will receive a great deal more. Last week, Miss Bailey of Yorkshire England, visited here in company with Mayor Johnson of Harbly and was taken over the district by auto. Miss Bailey will, during the next few months, write a book on Canada, entitled, "Impressions in Alberta." In order to acquaint herself with conditions as prevailing here, she is travelling over every district in Alberta and is being royally entertained by the different boards of trade in the towns being visited.

The C. P. R., who realize that they will gain a great deal of publicity as a result of the publication of this book, has placed an order for numerous copies that will be distributed by their immigration agents. The Alberta government have done the same and will place the book free of charge in the hands of prospect settlers, who will by this means become acquainted with the country from the impartial view of an outsider.

While here, Miss Bailey was taken out to see the buffalo and was greatly pleased with what she saw.

Edgerton Fall Fair is Now A Certainty

The Edgerton Fall Fair is a certainty and farmers throughout the district are getting ready to make the first annual exhibition at Edgerton a success. The date set for the fair is October 4th. Final arrangements were made by the different officers last week, with the result that prize lists are now being printed for distribution. A special page of prizes will be offered, donated by certain individuals, included among whom are H. V. Fieldhouse, J. M. Douglas, W. H. Hallett, Milne Bros., Thos. Dancy, John Halverson, Wm. Greive, Thos. Bazley, L. L. Bound, G. S. Morrow, D. McBrien and Thos. Brown. The indications are that the fair will be a most successful one.

CARD OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Kemp desire to thank their friends, citizens and the G. T. P. staff for their assistance and acts of kindness during their late sojourn.

TOWN VISITED BY LIQUOR SPOTTERS

Two Inspectors Made Raid on Alleged House of Ill Fame in Search of Liquor and Broke in the Door

It would be a shame to further make a "monkey" of the "spotters," who had information against the proprietors of the alleged house of ill repute west of town, on the charge of selling liquor, contrary to the provisions of the Alberta Liquor Act, by printing the general opinion of their ability as Crown prosecutors and the estimation of men who will break into a private house in search of liquor without giving their authority or stating to what office their noble names are attached. The evidence, given by them last week before Justice of the Peace Dawson at the police court, was shattered to pieces and their charge torn into fragments by H. V. Fieldhouse, counsel for the accused. In a rebuttal tone, it might be said that the "spotters" were beaten, although a much stronger and more suitable expression could be used.

The charge as outlined by them, stated that liquor had been seized "at a house about three miles west of town." The name of the town was not stated in the charge, neither was the province, in which the seizure was made. H. V. Fieldhouse, taking advantage of this in his summing up of the case, stated that according to the charge, the seizure might have been made in Saskatchewan or even in Europe. Both of the "spotters" gave evidence without even mentioning where the house was, from which they had taken the liquor. Founded on this technicality, Justice of the Peace J. H. Dawson dismissed the case.

The word "spotter" is one that brings with it, distaste, disgust and disapproval. The word sounds raw, crude and decidedly unpopular to those who believe in another way of doing things. Rather than breaking down the doors of the house in order to get the liquor, the informants might easily have produced their authority and demanded a search of the premises. Public opinion does not say by any means that these unlicensed houses shall exist, neither does the law but it would seem that those who will resort to such means of attaining their end, could very well employ a system that would be above board and authoritative. It would certainly do more towards closing up such houses and wiping them off the face of the map.

It is understood that the inmates of the house have since left town and have taken with them their household effects. In that case, the inspectors probably consider that their raid was productive of at least some results.

A. E. Ripley, who is connected with the International Harvester Co., and who is now travelling on the Westsaskin branch, was in town last week. While here, arguments were numerous on reciprocity although the popular "Rip" could not see that reciprocity had a meaning that in any way corresponded to prosperity.

Mr. and Mrs. Culp and sister, Miss Wintle, were visitors to Edmonton last week, returning home on Saturday.

Reciprocity

Powerful and Impressive Speeches by Prominent Reciprocity Supporters Received with Loud Applause --- Smith Trailed Bennett

Laurier's History

Before a crowd, estimated by many at two hundred and fifty and by others at even more, James M. Douglas, the liberal candidate for the Strathcona constituency and George P. Smith, M. P. of Camrose, spoke in the Auditorium last Thursday evening last. The hall was well filled and among the audience were many prominent conservatives.

Mayor Pawling, president of the local liberal association, presided at the meeting and in fitting words introduced the speakers, at the same time giving a brief outline of the reciprocity agreement. Mr. Douglas delivered the main arguments of the campaign. His appeal was made to those who favored freer trade between the two countries and the breaking down of the barrier, which now prevents the Canadian farmer from dealing with his American neighbor. The reciprocity agreement was a business agreement between Canada and the United States, by which the people of both countries stood to win. It was the avowed policy of Sir John A. McDonald and the policy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Farmers had recently asked for freer trade with Uncle Sam, at that they could enjoy the advantage of the American market. The tariff on wheat was not to their advantage, they wanted it removed and the liberals would remove it. The liberals had been building up Canada since 1896—railways had been constructed, immigration had started in a mighty rush and the whole country thrown open to improvement. Laurier now proposed to open a new market, where the Canadian farmer could sell to both sides. It would be an equal basis, the United States were in many cases taking off more duty than Canada, yet it would now be on an even basis. It would not cost the Canadian one cent to make the trade. To refuse it would be business suicide. Canada was just starting. The soil had only been scratched, although much more was being produced. With the increase in population and the increase in production a new market must be found. If the west increased in five years, 5,000,000 souls, the only number of bushels of grain will have to be exported. Where then would the western farmer find a market for his produce? He must turn to his American neighbors. Mr. Douglas spoke of the annexation cry and showing that better prices were being obtained. If the west increased in five years, 5,000,000 souls, the only number of bushels of grain will have to be exported. Where then would the western farmer find a market for his produce? He must turn to his American neighbors. Mr. Douglas spoke of the annexation cry and showing that better prices were being obtained. The Deposing of Judge Lynch

But He Was Restored as the Best Form of Justice at the Head of the Law

By DAVID SKINNER
Copyright by American Press Association, 1918.

Judge Lynch had fallen into disrepute at Royal Flush. Tom Miller had been accused of the murder of his partner, John Jones, and notwithstanding his protestations of innocence and the fearful pleadings of his wife had been hanged to the branch of a tree until he was dead. The day after the hanging the murdered man walked into Royal Flush covered with wounds and scratches, to the surprise of all, the terror of a few who considered him a ghost and the chagrin of those who had been active in making Mr. Miller a widow.

The case against Miller had been so plain that no one but a fool or one interested in defeating justice could fail to see that he was guilty. He and Jones had been working a claim together upon the mountain side. Frightful cries had been heard in that region in the dead of night. The next morning Jones was not to be found, and Miller's clothes were smeared with blood. The vigilance committee arrested Miller, who told a cock and bull story about a mountain lion jumping on his partner and the Miller attacking the beast with his knife. Having turned the beast on himself, Jones, being freed, took to his heels. The lion made off.

Jones on his arrival confirmed Miller's story, supplementing it with the information that once out of the clutches of the vigilance committee he had been running till dawn of day.

A meeting of the residents of Royal Flush was called, and the matter of his deposition was discussed. The nearest practicable plan to such substitution in no man's place was to select a judge and invite two lawyers to settle in the place, the one for prosecuting attorney, the other for the defense of the accused.

The judge scratched his head and knit his brows. Then he asked the lawyers for an answer, and they both declared that the verdict must rest on the evidence.

"Then," said the foreman, "we find that the prisoner was a man of good character, and that he was not guilty. I move the discharge of my client."

"Your honor," said the judge, "I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client."

"Faster citizens," said the judge, "I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client."

"There were lawless characters in Royal Flush who expressed themselves pleased with this proposed adjournment of the law. The reason for their satisfaction was that when the vigilance committee took them in hand they were pretty sure to get their assets. That the committee occasionally made a mistake and punished an innocent citizen did not concern them. As soon as the court was organized and the lawyers arrived the lawbreakers considered all restraint removed. One of the worst of them, Mike Flynn, having a grudge against a professional gambler, 'Light Fingers Jim,' as he was called, waited a week for the new order to be established before taking his revenge, then shot the gambler down in cold blood in the center of the town. He at once gave himself up for trial.

There were three witnesses who had seen the shooting. Bill Evans was the first of these who was called upon by the prosecution. He had stood within a hundred yards of the two men and had seen the whole affair from start to finish. His story was that Flynn had approached 'Light Fingers Jim' from behind and shot him in the back.

When the attorney for the defense 'took the witness' he held up before him a statuette, which is a rare with a bird sketched on one side and a cage on the other. By means of two strings, one on each end of the card, he revolved it rapidly and asked the witness what he saw. The answer was 'a bird in a cage.' The lawyer then showed the statuette to the jury and said:

"The witness evidently had defective eyesight. His vision is so bad that he not only saw that the bird and the cage are on opposite sides of the card, but the witness was also Wilkins."

"Where were you, Mr. Wilkins, when you saw the shooting?" asked counsel for defense on cross examination.

"On the street," he answered. "What part of the street?" "The part of the street where the witness was standing." "What time of day was it?" "About half past six of the afternoon."

"Gentlemen of the jury, how could the witness have not a clear view of the tracks with his face to the west and the sun shining right in his eyes?" The third witness was very easily discredited. She was a young girl, fifteen years old.

"How old are you?" asked the counsel for the defense.

"Eighteen, tomorrow," she answered.

"Your honor, I object to the testimony of the witness on the ground that she is not of age."

"The judge did not know whether the objective should be sustained or not, so he adjourned the court till the next day, when the girl would be of age."

When the court resumed again the attorney, testing the witness's testimony of two out of the only three witnesses who had seen the shooting, set his wit to work to disprove of the girl. But he did not set upon her directly. He proved by several witnesses that she was in love with the 'Light Fingers Jim' and indicated her intention that, thereby, she had never said a word to her, who was not sure she had not worshipped him from a distance.

"Gentlemen of the jury, I put it to you," said the lawyer, "Is a girl who is in love with a man who has been killed in a track a fit witness against his adversary?"

There being no more witnesses, the prosecuting attorney made a long speech, picturing the enormity of the crime so vividly that when he closed every man of the jury arose and shouted "Guilty!"

But the judge informed them that counsel for the defense had something to say about the matter before they were to bring in a verdict. At this they set down and counsel for the defense arose. He took the ground that there had been an extraordinary shooting match between the two men which nobody had seen. Then he proceeded to picture the innocent young hero for the prisoner on the part of the jury.

—He was not present to deny the impeachment—and the agony of the poor girl at seeing the man she idolized hanging a lifeless corpse. So effective was this part of his harangue that several jurymen were moved to tears. With his arguments and his pictures fresh in their minds the jury retired for consultation.

After ten hours' session they sent out to the judge that they were ready to give a verdict. Being recalled, the foreman asked:

"Judge, we wish to find a verdict according to the facts or according to the evidence?"

The judge scratched his head and knit his brows. Then he asked the lawyers for an answer, and they both declared that the verdict must rest on the evidence.

"Then," said the foreman, "we find that the prisoner was a man of good character, and that he was not guilty. I move the discharge of my client."

"Your honor," said the judge, "I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client. I move the discharge of my client."

THE ARTIST'S IDOL

She Didn't Know Anything About Music—She Only Loved It

The incident happened upon one of the great ocean liners during an autumn trip when a famous violinist was among the passengers. At first he firmly refused to play, but was finally persuaded and upon the appointed evening the salon was crowded with eager passengers.

It was a most enthusiastic audience, intelligent sympathizers and appreciators, yet as the evening wore on people began to notice that the violinist's glance was always in one direction, and after a time others followed him.

They saw a plain little woman, plainly dressed, with no marks of wealth or culture. But she was looking at the master with shining eyes, her face wet with tears, manifold of everything except the magic of his violin. When the program was ended, pushing his way through the people who would have crowded him, the violinist went straight to the little shabby figure.

"Madame, I congratulate you—you are a great artist!" he cried.

"I am not an artist," she answered. "I am only a mother who loves her child."

The violinist shook his big shaggy head impatiently.

"Is it not what I say? You have so much to say to me. What is it?"

"I am not an artist," she answered. "I am only a mother who loves her child."

The violinist shook his big shaggy head impatiently.

"Is it not what I say? You have so much to say to me. What is it?"

OUR STAND

The editor of this paper has been informed on numerous occasions during the past few weeks that neither head nor tail could be made of where the "Star" stood politically and that it was impossible to form a correct opinion as to which party was being supported through its columns. It is high time then for a "showdown" and certain information relative to the stand being taken.

It is customary with publications, where it has no opposition, to remain neutral and oppose neither one side nor the other; to act with discretion concerning all political news that will eventually be reviewed by our subscribers. And is not this a most difficult task? The public see it and the editor has been accused of being a liberal. On a number of occasions he has been accused of being a conservative. And why? Simply because the views of the reader and because he in different channels to the true state of affairs, existing at certain meetings, which to this date have been held in the political campaign meetings as discussed.

To print articles without color or prejudice should be aimed at. But this is as difficult as it is wise. One week it might appear to liberals that the columns were supporting the conservatives, while the very next article to it might be of a decidedly liberal hue. If this has been the case, be it enough to say that during the campaign so far, the greatest care has been exercised in an endeavour to make the paper an independent one. The editor is considered as being perched upon the highest pinnacle of a tottering, ramshackle fence, ready to turn at the polls towards that view. Be that as it may, the editor of this paper has his views, although it is impossible to say through the columns of this paper where those views lie.

This brief summary of our views cannot be taken as a lame excuse for our action taken, rather it must be considered as an outline of what has been the intention and what will be followed from now until September 21st.

Oliver in the Field

Rutherford has stepped out of the Edmonton political arena and has made way for the Minister of the Interior, Hon. Frank Oliver, who is again the liberal candidate in that constituency. Why the former leader of the Alberta government over allowed his name to go before the delegates at the first convention, held in the city, it would be impossible to say. At any rate it would have been far better and would certainly not have produced so much unfavorable comment had he not accepted the nomination or even allowed himself to stand after being chosen by a handful of delegates.

Politicians would have us believe that they know exactly where reciprocity will land the country. In cases, there is no doubt that they are correct, in others they, themselves, are voting in direct opposition to their convictions. They must do so to meet the demands of their constituents and yet remain in the political arena. This, however, it is to be deplored. Both leaders call for an unprejudiced vote, wherein party politics should not figure.

TIME FARMERS SHOWED THE MANUFACTURERS

Canada would find a new market for her abundance of green feed, or otherwise frozen products. The 25 per cent decrease on implements was discussed and although Mr. Douglas regretted that it was not enough, stated that it was a step in the right direction. The manufacturers had stated that they would be compelled to move their factories to the States. "Let them move," said he, "it is high time that the farmers showed them that they do not own Canada." (Applause) September 21st, would decide the issue and he solicited the vote of every man in the audience, who was in favor of free trade between the two countries. He wanted to see the farmers vote on that day and not stay away from the polls. "If you go to the polls and I ask you not to let half a day make any difference on such an important question," said he, "there is no doubt in my mind but that the government will be sustained and the liberal candidate in Saskatchewan returned to Ottawa for another term." (Applause)

The next speaker, Mr. Smith was then introduced. His review of the progress of the country since 1896 was strong. Canada had taken a terrible leap forward and would go even farther with reciprocity. After the liberals came into power sweeping changes were made. The British preference was established soon after. West was opened up, postage was reduced and the revenue was augmented. Free trade was discussed by Mr. Smith and its advantages proved by reference to the British preference. The Bourassa-Borden League was taken up. No plank in Borden's platform said anything about the navy bill. He was afraid of offending Bourassa, with which he was connected. As for Bourassa, himself, he was an unpatriotic, disgruntled, notorious nationalist, who believed in ousting Laurier no matter at what odds. R. B. Bennett also came in for much criticism from Mr. Smith and his policies made considerable sport of. Mr. Smith's speech was fraught with many citations, anecdotes and humour that placed his audience in a happy mood. In closing, he stated that the agreement had been drawn up for the homesteader in his shack, the down trodden farmer and not for the manufacturers, who were each year depleting the pockets of the farmers with their extortionate charges.

After the meeting, three cheers were given for Laurier, Campbell and the Liberal party thus bringing to a close one of the most successful meetings ever held in town.

The farmers of Canada must decide reciprocity and whether or not it shall pass the House and become law. They are bolstered up in many cases by the fact that the pact can be repealed at any time but not until it has become seated in many places, with an entire change of trade conditions.

The cries of the western farmer have become so strong and so many of the leading publications have taken up their cause that something definite will occur in the near future with regard to the excessive freight rates, being charged by the railway companies. The systems are good, the service cannot be excelled but yet are none better than those being given by the western American roads. Developments will follow with the convening of parliament and it is expected that the "railway freight tax" will undergo a revolution. The farmers are praying for it at any rate and expect it.

Wainwright has now had an opportunity of hearing both sides of the reciprocity issue discussed and from men, who should know where the agreement will eventually place the country in comparison to its prosperity at the present time. The reciprocity exponents have submitted a strong case and certain arguments still remain unanswered by their opponents. On the other hand, the conservatives have appealed to the electors and have created a good impression. The outcome, however, must be decided on September 21st, and there is no reason why every voter cannot form some opinion of the all important issue at stake.

Insull will have an electric lighting plant and to that end has prepared a by-law for $15,000, which will in due time be submitted to the ratepayers.

FALLING HAIR

Mrs. Jas. Harris of Wainwright, Sask., says—

"I have found Parisian Sage to be the best scalp and hair tonic and dressing I have ever used. My hair has been coming out in clumps full and was very dry and brittle and the scalp was always itching and full of dandruff. I have used two bottles of Parisian Sage and it has stopped my hair from falling, the itching and dandruff have disappeared and my hair is fine and soft and glossy. I would not be without this fine Hair Tonic for many times the price."

For women, men or children Parisian Sage is without any doubt the finest preparation for the hair. Daily perfumed, it is free from grease or stickiness and ought to be where every member of the family could use it daily. Large bottle 50 cents at all druggists or from the proprietors, The Gironx Mfg. Co., Fort Erie, Ont., postpaid. The girl with the Auburn hair is on every package. Sold and guaranteed by Spots would dazzle before my eyes and I would fall to the floor and be unable to get up again without assistance. A friend told me of Booth's Kidney Pills and I began their use. Temperance is a virtue and means moderation. Temperance means sobriety. Temperance does not mean total abstinence. It does not mean prohibition. Temperance means moderate and rightful use. The advocates of Local Option confound the meaning of terms. Temperance is a virtue; Local Option is a policy. Temperance is an interior quality; Local Option is an exterior force. Temperance admits the personal rights of man; Local Option denies them. Temperance is the virtue of a free man; Local Option is legislative absolutism. Temperance means sobriety by self control; Local Option attempts to produce sobriety by law. Temperance needs liberty to flourish; Local Option demands tyranny to rule. Intemperance can never be abolished by the policeman's club on the strong arm of the law. Prohibitory measures are not merely harmful quackery but—dangerous legalized forces.

The licensed hotelkeeper fills a distinct niche in the community. His house is a convenience for the business man, travelling and resident alike, and its closing is a loss which the business feels very keenly. Both by night and day the hotelkeeper has to be at the beck and call of the community, and if he does not provide the proper equipment or accommodation in his house, the authorities will compel him to do so. He pays a heavy price for the premises in which he carries on his business, his license fee is high, and he is hedged about with restrictions and rules, for the non-observance of which he is liable to penalties. If he conducts his house in strict accordance with the law, he gets no consideration, and if he gives way to the people who seduce him into breaking the law, his is the punishment.

a double role or to use one frock with attractive accessories is blessed doubly, for she possesses a versatility of mind and a varied outfit.

Look at the nucleus of this wardrobe. It is a lingerie dress of marquisette or voile. The bodice is collarless and trimmed with heavy lace in a bolero line. Straps of lace pass over the shoulders and fine tucks fill in the front. The three-quarter kimono sleeves are trimmed with lace and tucks. The skirt has a decided fullness around the hips, and a deep hem of lace and embroidery edges the tunic. If you prefer, you can make the foundation of your outfit much simpler. Just a few tucks on bodice and skirt, with an edging at the neck, sleeves and tunic of deep lace or embroidery, will do.

Suppose you wish the short jacket effect so much in vogue. Well, just slip into a separate embroidered bolero and pin the fronts with your favorite brooch. This jacket can be elaborately worked in embroidery and lace, or it can be a fitted shape of tucks, piped with silk. You will notice the entirely different effect obtained by adding the jacket.

The use of a separate tunic again shifts the scenes, as it were. The model is of coarse net in ecru, and is trimmed with embroidery done in coarse wool and applied by hand. There are other types. The chiffon, the marquisette or the soft net tunic is procurable in lovely beaded form. The tunic has the power to give an effect of a net dress, because it is quite long.

The tying of a silk sash is yet another device followed by the clever woman. Of pale dresden silk ribbon the model is made, with a quilling of plain pink outlining the bow and the ends. Two widths of silk ribbon are folded to form the wide girdle that is fastened in a point at the back. The high line is emphasized by this treatment. Just a sash hint, please: The black velvet "obi" and girdle will be much worn this summer.

An outfit without a fichu would be incomplete. Make it of point d'esprit, or tulle, or blonde, and edge the folds with a pleated ruffle. The ends are crossed in front, encircle the waist and are tied in a butterfly bow at the back. If you prefer, you can make the ends longer and let them hang flat at the back, caught high up under a buckle or pin.

From one dress a delightful summer outfit! And the magician's wand has been placed in your hand. Try to wave it over your limited purse and a few summer materials.
